

NATIVE PLANT NURSERIES

Many of the native plant nurseries listed below are individually owned and they grow their stock at their homes or farms. Contact them before going, as they are usually only open per appointment; however, many are happy to meet customers at their home or farm if they are available. Some take their stock to various functions around Ohio and can give you information about which they will be attending. Scioto Nursery has regular hours and operates as a regular business. Many of their websites have plant lists and some even have lovely pictures. Scioto's website has detailed growing information as does Natives in Harmony. Tim Powell will arrange to meet you for an order at his nursery and has been able in the past to deliver large orders. Genius Loci does landscape design and installation as well as selling native plants. Most of these nurseries attend the Twinsburg Garden Club's Annual Pollinator and Native Plant Seminar held in May. Last year's event was cancelled but not sure about 2021. Marcia Carsten 12/2020
